

Short Notes of the Policy Development Workshop of FAO and the Guangzhou Policy Development Workshop and the DST Workshop of FAO

In June, a Policy Development Workshop was held in Thailand by FAO. The participants were from the three countries that took part in the GEF LWM Project in Asia: China, Thailand and Vietnam. The workshop lasted for 3 days, the Guangdong PMO members, the policy development experts Dr. Dong Hongmin and Dr. Tao Xiuping, and the project expert Dr. Liao Xindi took part in the meetings and had speeches on the workshop. The research and the progress of the policy development in China received high praises from the FAO experts and the colleagues from the other two countries.

Later, the workshops were held in the DOA of Guangdong province from June 23 to June 24. The participants include six experts of the FAO, the related Chinese experts and the Guangdong PMO staffs.

Focus on the subjects of the DST and policy development, the experts exchanged the ideas and discussed on the software exploitation of the Livestock Waste Management and the means of collecting data. At the same time, the participants compared the advantages and the disadvantages between the different waste management technologies. What's more important, after the discussions, the experts had the agreement that which technology is suitable for Guangdong project and which one is not at this moment.
